The negative effects of uncontrolled growth on our community have become all too apparent. The City cannot expect to provide an adequate level of services without new vision and new policies. To maintain all of our unique neighborhoods (especially in light of the council's increasing use of eminent domain against residences) and to also conserve open space both in the flatlands as well as the badlands a comprehensive anti-sprawl policy must be adopted. Loma Linda will continue to grow. To meet this demand, well-planned, multi-use, vertically structured neighborhoods must be developed in the City core proximate to the University. This can be accomplished only after the City and the University establish an open working dialogue.
